dence. The couple will go to Boston on a wedding tour.

At noon today a fashionable crowd at Epiphany Church witnessed the ceremony which united Miss Jane Stone Abert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stone Abert, and Mr. John Patten Story, ir., son of Maj. John P. Story, U. S. A., now stationed at Governor's Island. The chancel was handsomely set with palms and foliage plants and flowers filled the altar vases. The ushers were Mr. Stevens of Philadelphia, Mr. La Barron Russell of Boston, Baron Herman of the German embassy, Lieut. Robert Wallach, Mr. Reynolds Hittand Mr. F. O. Horstmann. They led the way to the chancel upon the arrival of the bridal party. The bride was escorted by her father and was preceded to the altar by two bridesmaids, Miss Alice Hay and Miss Higbee of New York, and Miss Glover as maid of honor. Mr. Horace Westcott was best man, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. McKim, rector of the church.

church.

The bride, who was regarded as among the beauties of the debutantes of the past winter, made an exceedingly pretty picture in her trained dress of white satin trimmed with point lace and orange blossoms; her tulle veil enveloped her graceful figure. The bridesmalds wore stylish gowns of white chiffon made over white silk and carried clusters of white liliacs tied with long streamers of pink ribbon. Their hats were of leghorn, caught up prettily with pink roses.

roses. The wedding breakfast followed at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Abert, on K street, where relatives and the personal friends of the young couple had a couple of pleasant hours, until the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Story for their honeymoon. The bride's presents were numerous and included many most desirable possessions.

numerous that the mantels and tables of three rooms had their piled-up burdens of fragrance.

Mrs. Lincoln and her accomplished young daughter met their guests at the drawing room door, the latter wearing a dainty gown of white silk trimmed with the embroidered net which her maternal grandmother first wore at her marriage. Her flowers, of which she carried an armful, were pink sweet peas. Her talented mother, whom every one is so glad to welcome back to social life, wore a becoming white and flower-striped silk. In the dining room, where Mrs. McGuire and Mrs. Chatard did the honors at the tables, the decorations were in pink sweet peas. Mrs. G. L. Howland, Mrs. Hine of Philadelphia, Mrs. Stevens Vail of New York, the Misses Tyler of New London, Conn.; Miss McGowan and Miss Adola Greely arsisted in entertaining the guests, among whom were very large representations of the resident families as well as of the diplomatic circle.

as maid of honor. The beauty of the charming young bride was never observed to better advantage than in wedding finery. Her dress was of white satin, very elaborately trimmed with accordeon pleatings of chiffon and orange blossom sprays. Her only ornaments were family pearls, the brooch and necklace having belonged to her grandmother, Mrs. Monroe, and were worn by her in the White House. Her tulle veil was caught by a cluster of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley. The youthful maid of honor was dressed in a pretty dress of white slik muil, with which was worn a large white hat trimmed with pink feathers. Her flowers were a cluster of American beauty roses. After the marriage ceremony Father Mackin celebrated nuptial mass. In the sanctuary there were also present Rev. Thomas S. Lee of St. Matthews, Father Krews and Father Hughes of Baltimore. It was close to the noon hour when the bridal party left the church. The wedding breakfast which followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs, Heiskell was attended only by relatives and was a happy ending to the event. The house was gay with flowers and the guests enjoyed a glimpse of the wedding presents, which, as natural in the case of such a favorite, were generously bestowed on the fair bride. Late in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Sefton left for their honeymoon journey, the bride's going-away dress being a tailor-made gray cloth, with hat to match. Upon their return to this city they will go to housekeeping at the Westminster. Some of the guests from Baltimors present at the wedding were Mrs. and Miss Heiskell, Mrs. Derringer and Miss Mollie Lee.

A noon wedding at which a large gathering of relatives looked smillingly on took place at the residence of ex-Senator and Mrs. A. P. Gorman, when their daughter, Miss Haddie Donagan Gorman, became the wife of Mr. Stephen W. Gambrill. The drawing rooms were most elaborately adorned with American beauty roses. Across the double windows a palm bower was arranged, and in front of this the young couple stood to be married. The corners of the bower were filled with tall
